About Sirion

Sirion brought contract AI to the market in 2012 with machine learning built natively into its CLM platform, powering best-in-class contract data extraction and analytics. It was also built on the idea that relationships are the most important aspect of business. Because CLM needs vary from company to company, Sirion continues to approach AI, and now Generative AI, from a multi-dimensional angle. Sirion's end-to-end solution handles every contracting need across an organization. It redefines the contract lifecycle by giving teams the time and data to plan, strategize, and optimize before they even set foot at the negotiation table.
